

Elene Meipariani

Elene Ansaia Meipariani is a German-Georgian violinist whose artistic focus lies in the classical repertoire, while also recognizing contemporary works as an indispensable part of today's musical expression. Meipariani has performed as a soloist in venues including the Elbphilharmonie Hamburg's Grand Hall, as well as with the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra, the Bremen State Youth Orchestra, and the Tbilisi Philharmonic. In chamber music, she has collaborated with artists such as Lisa Batiashvili and Avi Avital and has appeared at festivals including the Schleswig-Holstein Music Festival, the Kissinger Sommer, and the Rheingau Music Festival. A particular focus of her work is the dialogue with living composers, including Isabel Mundry, Violeta Dinescu, and Tomasz Skweres, whose works she performs.

Out of interest in rarely performed repertoire and new sonic possibilities, she recorded a CD of two quintets by Maria Bach for the cpo label in 2019.

Since 2026, she has combined her artistic practice with teaching: After a one-semester substitute teaching position for Prof. Christine Busch, she holds a teaching position at the Stuttgart University of Music and Performing Arts.

Elene Meipariani is a prizewinner of international competitions, including third prize and the student jury prize for the most creative music education at the TONALI competition in Hamburg. With her piano trio Trio E.T.A., she received the prize of the German Music Competition in 2021. In 2023, her trio E. T. A. was accepted by the Südwestdeutscher Rundfunk (SWR2) into the exclusive, three-year "SWR2 – New Talent" development project and has since received support through live concert recordings, radio productions, concerts, and CD recordings. She began her studies at the age of ten with Prof. Christine Busch in Stuttgart. She received further formative influences from Prof. Tanja Becker-Bender, Prof. Priya Mitchell, Prof. Nora Chastain, Prof. Leonard Fu (Juilliard String Quartet), Prof. Martin Funda, and Prof. Lukas Hagen at the Mozarteum Salzburg.

Elene Meipariani is a scholarship recipient of the German National Academic Foundation.
